HOW DANCE IS IMPORTANT IN SCHOOLS?

Nowadays schools not only prioritize over academics but also give equal importance towards co-curricular activities. One of the most popular activities are considered dance, its a type of activity which permits the students to exhibit their creativity and elegancy through firm body movements.

Dance is important to be taught in school as it enables the students to discover their talent and it helps to increase their memory, order and sequencing skills. During this generation most youngsters and kids are addicted towards electronic gadgets because of which they are the primary sufferers of diseases such as obesity, eye diseases etc.

Dance ensures that there is development in health of young people and they're fit and healthy. Dance helps to increase cognitive development in the students. It helps in developing skills such as creativity and communication, Through the creative process, students are encouraged to use their imagination, collaborate with their peers to solve problems, and discover multiple solutions to challenges.

Dance is important at times of increased stress i.e. when students are tensed about their school exams it helps them to relieve stress and make their mind calm, this gives the students to process their work as well as take a well-deserved break. Though it is a form of physical exercise, it enhances the socializing skills between students and allows them to connect with others. Thus dance plays a vital role in the life of the students and is necessary in their student life.

IMPORTANCE OF MUSIC IN SCHOOLS

Topic-Importance of Music in Schools
By NeeradThe subject of Music is very important in school curriculum as it helps to expand memory and IQ. Music helps in expansion of their minds and increase their self-confidence and enthusiasm among pupils. Music serves a greater purpose in our lives than simply providing entertainment. The value of incorporating music into a child's education cannot be ignored. There is a heap of incontestable research showing that an education rich in music improves students' cognitive focus and academic performance in subjects like Maths and Science. It helps students in fostering the four Cs of communication-critical thinking, collaboration, creativity & communication. It can help entrepreneurs in making decisions. Teaching students in rhythmic instruments will help them produce any sound they want. It can help them know more about the musical instruments, sounds and ragas. Music makes us happy – it's as simple as that. It lights up every part of the brain and helps release dopamine – the feel-good chemical. It is a powerful way to keep kids calm and centred. Topic-integration of music with physics.

Music and physics are interlinked in many ways. The origins of both music and science go far back in time and have always been closely related, perhaps even back to the ancient times! In fact Physics came into existence in sometime in the 16th century. Musical instruments are constrained by the laws of physics and the development of instruments could not have progressed without the knowledge gained through the study of physics. the modern piano for example is an example of both engineering and asthetic beauty. It simply could not have been built before the eighteenth century because it required the current knowledge of mechanics and state of art knowledge.

music is greatly influenced by how the ear and the brain actually perceive sound. The ear is a highly complex mechanical device that demonstrates many principles of physics.
